PREFACE

This booklet is published to provide basic information about the educational opportunities in each of the Public Colleges in the Province of Alberta.

The Provincial College System Act of 1969 (Chapter 14 of the Alberta Statutes) provides for the creation, establishment and operation of public community colleges in the Province of Alberta.

The basic philosophy of the colleges is to provide the opportunity for every adult individual to pursue education to his fullest potential and interest. This is sometimes referred to as the "open-door" policy of the College System. Each community college provides educational programs unique to the needs of the area. Thus, career and occupational curricula, community service programs, academic upgrading, and university transfer programs are available in these institutions.

Grande Prairie Regional College

The College and its Philosophy

The Grande Prairie Regional College is one of Alberta's newer colleges serving the Peace River Block. It currently operates out of temporary facilities but extensive plans are underway for a large new campus in the city of Grande Prairie.

As a regional institution, the college is developing a wide range of post-secondary programs for students in various patterns. It currently provides opportunities for students seeking preparation in university programs, vocational, technical, and service programs, and for adults interested in short courses of a cultural or practical nature. The college is particularly proud of its large community orchestra.

While the college is oriented toward the area of Northwestern Alberta which is its primary service region, its programs and courses are open to students from any location. The college is divided into program and service divisions which include Liberal Education, Business Education, Continuing Education, and Student Services.

The Board of Governors has established a philosophy of commitment to the development of academic endeavour. The college exists to assist students to prepare themselves for their selected vocations or professions.

Grant MacEwan Community College

The College and its Philosophy

The Grant MacEwan Community College is the newest college in Alberta. Designed to complement the educational programs of the University of Alberta and the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology, this college began operating programs in Edmonton in September 1971.

The Board of Governors has accepted as a major philosophy for the college the provision of programs and services to meet the needs of the greater Edmonton community. To this end, the multi-campus approach has been adopted, with campuses scattered throughout the city.

Although the program offerings this year are limited to a few one and two-year career programs, plans are currently underway to develop a large repertoire of upgrading, career, professional, and continuing education programs in both the inner city and the suburban areas. It is anticipated that 5,000 full-time students will be in attendance at the Grant MacEwan Community College within a few years.

Lethbridge Community College

The College and its Philosophy

The Lethbridge Community College officially opened as a Junior College in 1957. Until 1962, it was housed in the Lethbridge Collegiate Institute. Today approximately 1,000 students attend classes in a large modern campus which until this year was shared with the University of Lethbridge. Now, since the university has moved, the college with its emphasis on technical, vocational, and general education is rapidly developing into a true community college.

The philosophy of the college holds that within the limits of the plant, staff and financial resources provided at the college, all those individuals who are qualified to pursue additional or higher education shall be given the opportunity to do so. Those who do not have the necessary qualifications for the particular course in mind, are encouraged to avail themselves of the opportunity to improve their education to a standard that will permit entry into a course of their choice in post-secondary education.

The extensive list of one and two-year career programs available at the college is supplemented by the largest community service program available at any college in Alberta. In 1970, 3,066 students availed themselves of 205 community service courses.

Medicine Hat College

The College and Its Philosophy

The Medicine Hat College has been operating since 1964 in a wing of the Medicine Hat High School Complex. This year the college commenced operations in its own modern, student-centered facilities located on a beautiful campus in the southern part of the city.

The college has set for itself the following objectives:

1. To assist all students to participate intelligently and responsibly in the affairs of society through a program of liberal education.
2. To prepare students for direct employment through suitable occupational vocational programs.
3. To provide two years of university parallel education.
4. To provide adult and continuing education.
5. To serve the community through a variety of intellectual and cultural programs.
6. To aid students in attaining a better understanding of educational and occupational opportunities through an effective program of counselling and guidance.
7. To assist the economic life of the community through services to the public and to business, industry and labour.

In addition to the university transfer program, the college offers one and two-year programs in Business Administration, and Secretarial Science, a semestered program in Academic Upgrading, a two-year program in Diploma Nursing and a one year program in Commercial Cooking.

Mount Royal College

The College and Its Philosophy

Mount Royal College was founded in 1910 under the sponsorship of the Board of Governors of the Methodist Church. On September 1, 1966 the college became a public institution. Rapidly rising enrollments have put heavy pressure on the institution to provide more classroom space. Consequently, a new campus to provide accommodation for 3,000 full-time students in the first phase is being constructed in Lincoln Park, and will be ready for occupancy in September, 1973.

The Board of Governors adopted three main tenets for its basis for governance. These include:

1. A comprehensive, flexible, and current curriculum;
2. Accommodation of any adult who expresses a willingness to learn; and
3. Availability of an active counselling and guidance program.

To make these requirements operational, the College has adopted the following objectives:

1. To provide career education which will lead to gainful employment as well as programs which students may transfer to senior institutions.
2. Insofar as possible, to admit anyone with a high school diploma or who is at least 18 years of age.
3. To help the student to choose reasonable alternatives in the successful pursuit of his educational goals.

Red Deer College

The College and Its Philosophy

The Red Deer College began operations in September, 1964 as the Red Deer Junior College with an enrollment of 121 students. It was first located in the Lindsay Thurber Composite High School until the new modern campus in southwest Red Deer was ready for the 1968-69 session.

Today, the enrollment in the college exceeds 900 students including part-time. The college has expanded its offerings recently to include two years of university transfer courses in addition to the regular career programs.

The Red Deer College, as a comprehensive institution of post-secondary education serves the greater Red Deer community by:

1. making a variety of post-secondary educational opportunities available to all adults in the area,
2. providing quality educational programs,
3. emphasizing excellence in teaching,
4. recognizing the worth of each student as an individual, and
5. providing community service through a comprehensive continuing education function.

Extensive additions to the college are currently underway. Included in the new plans are a modern residence complex, a library addition, a cafeteria and food service complex, data processing space, a bookstore, laboratories, and office space. These additions should provide some of the finest facilities available.
